THE AUSTRALIAN MAIL.

The China Navigation Co.'s steamer Changsha, with Australian mails, arrived here yesterday morning. The following telegrams are taken from our Australian files:

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL'S EXPLANATION.

LONDON, 27th February.

In the House of Commons to-day, Lord Randolph Churchill made a speech, indicating his resignation as Chancellor of the Exchequer. He declared that the Estimates for the Army and Navy, prepared by the Cabinet, were in excess of those justified by the genuinely peaceful policy which is incumbent upon England. His colleagues declined to agree with his proposed retrenchment in expenditure, and he accordingly tendered his resignation. The Prime Minister and Salisbury voted to him out that the projected economy was necessary to secure the safety of the various coaling stations required by Her Majesty's navy, especially as the chances were in favour of war breaking out at an early date. Lord Randolph Churchill, however, replied, referring to aquiesce in England's joining in the desperate stakes for which their nations were playing.

LONDON, 28th January.

In the House of Lords yesterday, during the debate on the Address, in reply to the Speech from the Throne, the Marquis of Salisbury referred to the resignation of Lord Randolph Churchill which he characterised as a loss to the Ministry. His resignation, he said, was due to a patriotic desire for economy, but it appeared to his colleagues to be somewhat hasty. Lord Salisbury hoped, however, that the discussion would not be of lasting duration. Referring to Eastern affairs, the Premier denied that he had sought to restore Prince Alexander to the three of Bulgaria; in fact, his Majesty's Government was not opposed to the extension of Russian influence in the Balkan Peninsula, provided always that such influence did not result in a diminution of the vast and increasing armaments of many of the Powers were, Lord Salisbury continued, an undoubted source of danger, though this had not been increased by recent events. Lord Lyons and Sir C. B. Malet, British Ambassadors in Paris and Berlin respectively, had assured his Government that a peaceful feeling prevailed in those countries.

In the House of Commons yesterday, the Address in reply was moved by Viscount Weymouth, M.P. for Fermanagh.

During the debate which followed Mr. Gladstone called the views put forward by Lord Randolph Churchill as to the necessity for observing the economy in the management of Finance. He attributed the origin of the "Plan of the Campaign," to which reference was made in the speech, to the troops, to the absence of any signal or provision for the safety of the adopted districts prevailing in Ireland.

The Right Hon. W. H. Smith stated that her Majesty's Government was not desirous of interfering in any foreign complication, but would not act in conformity with treaty obligations. He invited Mr. Gladstone, as head of the Nationalist party, to exert his influence in securing the restoration of order in Ireland in view of the projected reform of local government in that country.

The debate was then adjourned.

LONDON, 28th January.

The Press generally condemns the conduct of Lord Randolph Churchill in resigning his position in the Ministry for such a reason as that stated by him in the House of Commons last night.

LONDON, 29th January.
